Sibsey Trader mill is a six sail windmill owned and run by English Heritage. The mill is closed when it is in use for milling and open to visitors on non-milling days. The windmill will be run at certain times to demonstrate the mechanisms of the milling process to visitors. There is a small charge for visits and you will need to check in advance that the mill is open to visitors.

For visitors, disabled access is external only. There are some catering facilities. The mill was built in 1877 and worked as a commercial mill for local farmers until it closed in 1954 At that time it had 4 sails. It has since been restored to full working order and now produces a range of organic flours.

Flour from this mill is available at the mill and at a number of outlets in Lincolnshire. It is a typically good quality range of products which I have used occasionally on my visits to the area as the preferred local flour.
