Heage windmill was built in 1797 and underwent a major restoration in 2002 It is a working windmill producing small quantities of stoneground and sifted flour for local sales outlets. The bags of flour are dated and initialled by the duty miller on the day of production.

This windmill is open to visitors on weekends and bank holidays between April and the end of October. It is best to check the website to confirm opening times. Tours are normally done by a qualified miller who works at the mill. The windmill staff and friends will hold stalls at local farmers markets and events.

I have used flour from this mill and it is of a very high quality. The milling is in the traditional style using grit stone mill stones. Heage flour is only generally available locally to the mill as the quantities produced are consistent with the power of the windmill.
