Built in 1819, this fine English five sail tower mill is situated within the town of Boston. The mill produces flour for sale and supplies a small number of local outlets. Check for flour stock levels prior to visiting the shop to avoid disappointment.

There is a tea room on site and a small shop. The mill and tearoom are generally open on Saturday and at other times during the summer holidays and Easter.

The flour is typical of well milled local produce. Quality is high and consistent between batches and I have used this flour for bread making with exceptionally good results.
