Skidby windmill was built in 1821 as a brick tower mill. In 1966 the mill was closed and sold to Beverley Borough Council for a nominal £1. Restoration started in 1998 and the mill is now running.

The East Riding of Yorkshire Council re-established the mill as the Museum of East Riding Rural Life. It is a working mill, producing flour for sale in its shop. The site also has a tea room and exhibition galleries. The miller currently works Wednesday to Sunday, but you will need to check details before visiting.

I have not used flour from this mill, but it is my intention to do so soon.
